

Center Point (Iowa) Public Library • 720 Main Street
Center Point, IA 52213
Monday, September 11, 2017

A Is for Aprons – I is for Ideas (for reading, sewing, entertaining, creating, and sharing)

A presentation by Sharron L. McElmeel

This presentation will share a potpourri of information about the history of aprons, connections to books, and myriad of ideas for reading, sewing, entertaining, creating, and sharing, and having fun doing it. Be inspired to put together unique gifts, and to participate in National Tie-One On Day.

2:00 p.m. in the afternoon at the library.

ABCs: Aprons, Books, and Connections

A presentation by Sharron L. McElmeel

While sharing some of the same information as the afternoon presentation the focus on this evening presentation will be on sharing additional ideas to involve the entire family in sharing information, developing ideas for family activities, reading, making books, and creating gifts for family and friends. All will be inspired to join in the celebration of the National Tie-One On Day.

6:30 p.m. in the evening at the library.

About Sharron McElmeel

As a literacy advocate, educator, and sewing and quilting enthusiast Sharron has authored more than 35 books for educators and parents, and teaches at the University of Wisconsin – Stout. She often speaks at national literacy events, but enjoys most sharing her home-spun advice and ideas with those in her own community: library groups, sewing guilds, parent organizations. She lives on an acreage clinging to the edge of Robins, which is a little larger than the population (100) town of her youth, but in the shadows of the second largest city in the state--Cedar Rapids. It is there that she teaches and writes, sews and reads, pieces quilts and hangs out with family and friends. She has an active presence on the Internet with linked resources from her website at <http://www.mcelmeel.com>.